The steamboat fatality on Lake Cayuga, New York, last Saturday, in which eight lives were lost, was of particular interest to I. C. Andrews, manager of Palmer's five and ten-cent store in Barre, because one of the victims, Mrs. Homer Genung, was his cousin. Mrs. Genung was the wife of Dr. Homer Genung of Freeville, N. Y. Her little son was drowned with her. The crew of the steamboat Frontenac did everything they could to save lives and did rescue many people from the water.

In justice to the managers of "A Lamb from Wall Street" company, it should be known that the many changes in the opening date have been due to illness and death. Miss Edna Palmer, who was to have been a member of the company sustained a sun-stroke in Boston, and Helen Dupont, who was to have left New York for Barre on Sunday was unable to do so owing to the sudden illness and death of her mother. But "A Lamb from Wall Street" will be produced Thursday and Friday nights by an all-professional company.

The Wonderland Moving Picture Co. at the Pavilion opened its ninth week with a large audience. It was hard to tell which was the best picture, as all were first-class. Wonderful Fair was beautiful. The Hooligans of the West brought great praise. Course of True Love is another name for the Great Venetian. The audience was held spell-bound when the young lady jumped from the ferry-boat. The Holiday kept the audience in laughter from the start to finish. D. W. Flogg, the manager, received many encouraging congratulations.

Mr. Flogg's second effort at the Methodist church, last evening, proved to be an unusually entertaining lecture, profusely illustrated, and giving a wide range of interest. The audience was taken on an imaginary trip through the White mountains, to Philadelphia, and to the city of Washington—the whole being made very realistic by magnificent stereoscopic views. This closes his engagement with the Foworth league. It would be hard to imagine anything more delightfully entertaining than Mr. Flogg's charming picture-tours.
